We bought a jingle bell collar for our dog to wear during the Christmas season. The collar is a big hit with the people we pass on the sidewalk during her walks; at least once a day, someone stops to greet her with share a smile and a comment. One woman even stopped her car and rolled down her window to wish her a merry Christmas!

For all the overdone commercialism this time of year, it's undeniable (at least in my experience) that Christmas makes people, regardless of what they believe about God, more overtly cheerful and joyous. This season provides the church with a marvelous opening to share the Good News!

This past Sunday, for the third week of Advent, we talked about joy. We considered Jesus' teaching that joy is an outgrowth of our love for one another and that our love for one another is, itself, an outgrowth of our love for him. A lack of joy, then, could be a symptom of a lack of love for others, indicating to a need for more of God's love in us. Here's what Jesus said:

Remain in my love. If you keep my commands, you will remain in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commands and remain in his love. I have told you this so that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be complete. My command is this: Love each other as I have loved you. (John 15:9–12)

In other words, we are commanded to love each other, and when we keep this command, we remain in Jesus' love. There, in his love, his joy is in us, making our joy complete.

How's your joy? Take a moment, during this season, to revel in God's presence, and ask him to fill you with love that overflows out of you and into a world where his true, unconditional love is sorely needed.

Merry Christmas!

Though you have not seen him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and are filled with an inexpressible and glorious joy (1 Peter 1:8)

Thanks for Praying!

The new year is in sight! We want to finish 2023 strong! When you pray, please remember:

- our upcoming week and month of prayer,
- many families struggling with housing and heat, and
- God's plan and provision for the upcoming year.

In the year 336, a calendar published by the Roman church established December 25th for the celebration of Jesus' birth. Although there is evidence that Christians celebrated Christ's birth in earlier years, there is no earlier record of a date for those celebrations. The Bible does not give the date of Jesus' birth, but the presence of shepherds in the fields with their flocks suggests that he was more likely born in the spring.

Suddenly a great company of the heavenly host appeared with the angel, praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest heaven, and on earth peace to those on whom his favor rests." (Luke 2:13,14)

Remain in my love. If you keep my commands, you will remain in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commands and remain in his love. I have told you this so that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be complete. My command is this: Love each other as I have loved you. (John 15:9–12)

In other words, we are commanded to love each other, and when we keep this command, we remain in Jesus' love. There, in his love, his joy is in us, making our joy complete.

How's your joy? Take a moment, during this season, to revel in God's presence, and ask him to fill you with love that overflows out of you and into a world where his true, unconditional love is sorely needed.

Merry Christmas!

Though you have not seen him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and are filled with an inexpressible and glorious joy (1 Peter 1:8)

Thanks for Praying!

The new year is in sight! We want to finish 2023 strong! When you pray, please remember:

- our upcoming week and month of prayer,
- many families struggling with housing and heat, and
- God's plan and provision for the upcoming year.

In the year 336, a calendar published by the Roman church established December 25th for the celebration of Jesus' birth. Although there is evidence that Christians celebrated Christ's birth in earlier years, there is no earlier record of a date for those celebrations. The Bible does not give the date of Jesus' birth, but the presence of shepherds in the fields with their flocks suggests that he was more likely born in the spring.

Suddenly a great company of the heavenly host appeared with the angel, praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest heaven, and on earth peace to those on whom his favor rests." (Luke 2:13,14)

We bought a jingle bell collar for our dog to wear during the Christmas season. The collar is a big hit with the people we pass on the sidewalk during her walks; at least once a day, someone stops to greet her with share a smile and a comment. One woman even stopped her car and rolled down her window to wish her a merry Christmas!

For all the overdone commercialism this time of year, it's undeniable (at least in my experience) that Christmas makes people, regardless of what they believe about God, more overtly cheerful and joyous. This season provides the church with a marvelous opening to share the Good News!

This past Sunday, for the third week of Advent, we talked about joy. We considered Jesus' teaching that joy is an outgrowth of our love for one another and that our love for one another is, itself, an outgrowth of our love for him. A lack of joy, then, could be a symptom of a lack of love for others, indicating to a need for more of God's love in us. Here's what Jesus said:

Remain in my love. If you keep my commands, you will remain in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commands and remain in his love. I have told you this so that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be complete. My command is this: Love each other as I have loved you. (John 15:9–12)
